Older Women's Pelvic Health Education and Health Promotion Intern

WHF, through a grant from the Retirement Research Foundation, is developing pelvic health educational materials for a senior audience. An intern is needed to support a collaborative initiative to create relevant pelvic health educational materials for women over 65. Both print and graphics will be developed. Content areas of interest include pelvic function, when things go wrong, sexuality and sexual activity, nutrition/ behavioral approaches and dealing with co-morbidities/medication. The intern will staff a panel of experts who will guide the content development. A student with experience with senior and aging issues is preferred.
